

The Right Recipe For Higher Margins

No matter how much someone wanted to cook, you wouldn't hire an auto mechanic as a chef. It's the same with your insurance. It takes an agent with restaurant business experience to give you an insurance program that reduces your costs.

Here's What Sets Us Apart From Other Insurance Brokers...

1. We get you ready for the insurance company. Joe spots risks that others may miss and then goes to work helping to reduce or eliminate them so you look good to the insurance company.
2. We monitor your business for continual improvement. Joe stays close to you, not just at the start, but all the time. The goal is to find more ways to lower your insurance costs.

Rueter Insurance works with restaurants of all sizes regardless of receipts, number of locations and states, or property values. No night clubs, pubs, street vendors, or bars. Franchise locations are OK, unless franchisor has its own insurance program.

WHAT JOE'S CLIENTS HAVE TO SAY...

"We're never bothered with insurance issues because Joe is on top of the account all the time," says Nick DiBello of Saladworks. "Joe knows what he's doing and that's why we never deal with anyone else."

"From the start," says Joe Morozin, Jr. of The Dining Car, "Joe Rueter focused on workers' compensation since our premiums were sky high. He introduced safety training for the employees and followed through to make sure it was working and our premiums have been down 70% for a number of years."

Rueter Insurance has the right recipe for the best insurance protection.
